I do not have nothing negative to say about this course.
Ok, here I have some hopefully constructive criticism. I loved almost everything about the course. You assisted me with everything I needed in a very timely manner and explained concepts very well that I can't imagine people had much trouble with them. Overall, I wouldn't change anything about the course except the blog. Now, I am an older demographic than most students, but I personally had a lot of issues navigating the blog. I don't know why, very often I knew you had the information up that I needed, but I couldn't find it. I don't fault or blame you as the instructor for this, it is clearly a fault on my part for disliking new things so often that I refuse to learn them. However, on day 1, if you have any students that you think might have issues with blogs in general, a very thorough and dumbed down version of navigating would have been wonderful for me. However, this may not be an issue in most of your classes.
I dont, we had a great teacher and he did wonderful.
